

FREDERICTON REGION MUSEUM NEWSLETTER 2021

Hal Skaarup is the new President of the York Sunbury Historical Society, Ltd.

It is an honour and a privilege to be the President of the York Sunbury Historical Society. We have an incredible team of enthusiastic museologists, guided by a highly educated Board of Directors and greatly supported by a collection of dedicated volunteers.

We look forward to welcoming all visitors to our eclectic and interesting exhibit displays honoring New Brunswick's past, present, and future, as and when the present public health restrictions are lifted.

Much of what you will see in the Fredericton Region Museum is about our rich heritage and how the City of Fredericton has grown and prospered. Come for a visit, and you will see for yourself why it has always been that way.

Inside this newsletter you will read about exciting new developments at the museum and of our partnerships with federal, provincial and municipal funders that have led to new exhibits, programming and improvements to our collections.

I'd like to draw special attention to the City of Fredericton for its generous support of the Museum's operations as well as our heritage, arts and cultural programs. City staff, from Building Services to Tourism, go above and beyond the call of duty and we can't thank them enough for their kindness and true professionalism in everything they do for the Museum.

I'd also like to acknowledge the support of our staff, volunteers and members of the Board who have worked incredibly hard to keep the museum safe and open for visitors these last 18 months since the onset of Covid.

OUR BLACK HERITAGE: EARLY BLACK SETTLERS OF YORK-SUNBURY COUNTIES 1783-PRESENT

June Carty and son David at the opening of the Black Heritage exhibit. June is pointing to an image of her husband, the late Gerald Carty, who served with the Royal Canadian Air Force during the Second World War.

Since the arrival of Black Loyalists in 1783, there have been settlers of African descent who have contributed greatly to the development of New Brunswick. Working ever so silently, without recognition or applause, families and communities have banded together to contribute in significant ways to the social enfranchisement of themselves and their neighbours; yet despite these positive developments, individuals of African descent continue to face oppression in this province.

This Exhibit tells the dynamic story of Blacks who have struggled against servitude and oppression in the Fredericton region. Through artefacts, archival documents, individual and family stories, extracts from oral histories, newspaper accounts, and photographs, visitors can explore the historical roots of oppression, and learn about the ways in which citizens of African descent have responded with determination and perseverance. It has been a long journey of mixed feelings and emotions.

The Black Heritage exhibit is modelled on the interior of St. Peter Anglican Church on the Woodstock Road. St. Peter was the spiritual home of the local Black community.

The Black Heritage exhibit is intended to recreate the interior of St. Peter Anglican Church on the Woodstock Road. It was built by exhibit developer Doug Hall with assistance from John Hall. To the left and right are reproductions of the stained glass windows at St. Peter: the two at left play videos that tell the true story of Nancy, who challenged New Brunswick's slavery laws in 1800, and Nathaniel Lad, who walked to Halifax in December 1791 to join the Black Loyalist exodus to Sierra Leone. Digital videos and animation by Synthetic Imageworks. Photo credit Kiers Marketing.

This is the story of York- Sunbury early Black settlers from 1783 to the present; It is a story of hope denied, hope restored, and hope that (for many) remains unfulfilled; these are their stories.

In proud recognition of National Emancipation Day, Our Black Heritage: Early Black Settlers of York- Sunbury Counties was opened to the public on August 1, 2021 with the official ribbon cutting by elder June Carty on August 2, 2021.

We are honoured to be working in partnership with a long list of dedicated volunteers to make this project possible. We are especially grateful to our partner institutions: Provincial Archives of NB, UNB (Harriet Irving Library & Special Collections), Kings Landing Historical Settlement, NB Museum, St Peter Anglican Church, NB Black History Society, Black Lives Matter Fredericton, and the NB Film Co-op.

We are also grateful to financial support provided by the Government of Canada, Province of NB, City of Fredericton, the Canadian Museum of History (Digital Museums Canada) and the York Sunbury Historical Society.

In conjunction with the exhibit, the York-Sunbury Historical Society will also release a special (2 volume) issue of The Officers' Quarters, highlighting in detail the achievements of Fredericton's Black community. Honoured contributors will include nationally acclaimed writers Lawrence Hill (author of The Book of Negroes) and George Elliott Clarke. (See page 18 for more information on The Officers' Quarters magazine.)

GET OUT OF THIS WORLD WITH THE STANTON FRIEDMAN EXHIBIT!

The Stanton Friedman exhibit was made possible with the support of Marilyn and Melissa Friedman.

On June 26, 2021 we launched a new exhibit dedicated to the late Stanton Friedman, the famous ufologist who lived here in Fredericton for more than 40 years.

Just how famous was Stanton Friedman? In the 1990s, a character based on him - "Dr. Stanton" - appeared in a Betty and Veronica comic book.

Stanton was a frequent guest on Larry King Live, and appeared on many other tv and radio shows including Discovery TV, History TV, etc. His obituary even appeared in the New York Times!

Stanton was featured in a Betty and Veronica comic book story about a UFO convention.

After Stanton passed away in May 2019, his wife Marilyn and daughter Melissa gave us temporary loan of many items from his private collection that had not made it up to the Provincial Archives of NB where Stanton donated the bulk of his materials before he passed away. These include artefacts, archival documents, photographs, publications, books and an audiovisual collection.

Work began in January 2020 and thanks to the super imagination of our team members, especially carpenter Doug Hall - who constructed the exhibit to resemble the interior of a space ship - we have developed a museum experience that is "Out of This World". We were lucky to have volunteers like Mel McCarthy and artists Laila Amhad, Eric Duivenvoorden, even exhibit curator (and Society VP Hal Skaarup) create inspired artwork. Sculptor Edwin Matthews added his own "Family of Visitors" sculptures which will be featured into next year. YSHS Board Member, Ian MacEacheron, put his finishing touch on so many parts of the exhibit we can't count them all! And Alexandra Blok edited the digital videos and audio that are part of the exhibit.

In conjunction with the exhibit, we kicked off a five part Stanton Friedman Memorial Speaker Series with Joanna Aiton-Kerr, Deputy Director, Provincial Archives who told the fascinating story behind Stanton's donation of his entire archival collection to PANB. The series also featured some of the most well known names in the field of ufology, including Kathleen Marden, Chris Styles, Jennifer Stein, Travis Walton and Chris Rutkowski.

Thanks to Marilyn and Melissa Friedman, as well as Joanna Aiton-Kerr and Ariel Otten of PANB for their support.

The Stanton Friedman Is Out Of This World Exhibit was made possible with the financial support of the City of Fredericton's Arts, Culture and Heritage program and the York Sunbury Historical Society.

EVERYBODY WANTS TO TAKE A SELFIE WITH OUR FRIENDLY NEIGHBOURHOOD ALIEN!

You know this is going to be popular selfie spot when 17 volunteers from NBCC couldn't wait to get their picture taken under the UFO.

Artist Edwiin Matthews stands next to one of the four Family of Visitors sculptures on July 24, 2021, the opening day of his art exhibit. The sculptures are on display in the Stanton Friedman exhibit.

BEAM ME UP SCOTTY!
Will Brewer had a blast during his visit to the exhibit in August.

Artist Eric Duivenvoorden created the alien figure based on descriptions found in Stanton's book "Captured" which tells the story of Betty and Barney Hill.

Volunteers Mel McCarthy and Laila Ahmad construct an alien figure out of chicken wire for the exhibit.

COLLECTIONS PROJECT UPDATE

Clothing from the museum's textiles collection is placed in cotton bags and hung on large racks in the 3rd floor storage area. A piece of green tape on the bags indicates the artefact has been examined and a photo taken for the paper file and Collective Access database.

In June 2021 we received funding from the Museum Assistance Program (MAP) to improve textile storage on the 3rd floor of the museum. This is the second MAP grant we received in two years and we are grateful to the Government of Canada, Department of Canadian Heritage, for its financial support.

This is a large undertaking that addresses a number of storage issues that have grown over the years along with the size of our textiles collection. Among the hundreds of textiles are mens', womens' and childrens' clothing from beautiful vintage dresses and coats to well preserved historic military uniforms, from dainty shoes to well worn boots. It also includes quilts and tapestries and all manner of hats and other accessories such as purses, belts and even umbrellas.

This MAP project will improve storage conditions for these extraordinary artefacts while transforming the current textiles area into a more easily accessible work space for staff.

In addition to taking photographs of each piece, staff have also been updating the Collective Access database - an online artefacts management database used by many museums in New Brunswick and across Canada. By improving the information that can be found in Collective Access, we help future collections staff and exhibit curators who rely on a robust database to inform their exhibits.

This textiles project dovetails nicely with last year's MAP Collections Storage Solutions grant (described below) which funded an upgrade of two large storage rooms on the 3rd Floor. The 2020 grant resulted in improved conditions for nearly 1500 artefacts and collections staff who work in the area.

Collections 2020

In May 2020 we received funding from MAP to upgrade our 3rd floor storage area with eight new industrial shelving units that gave permanent homes to 1500 artefacts from a cohort of 3000 in our collection.

This Collections Management project was a huge job with many moving parts, but with a great team in place we managed to achieve and exceed all our expectations.

Project Lead Janice Allen-Scott provided guidance and a steady hand of experience for Project Coordinator Holly Gallant, who managed a large number of enthusiastic student employees and volunteers over the six month life of the project from June to December.

After purchasing and installing the new shelving units, the 3000 artefacts were separated by labelled and unlabelled or accessioned and unaccessioned.

Depending on their status, the sorted artefacts were then rehoused in one of two separate rooms, each one containing four of the new industrial shelving units. Our focus was on the estimated 1500 labelled and accessioned artefacts; these were manually handled, measured and assessed. When required, research was conducted by our students to provide additional value to our on line database. The remaining 1500 unlabelled and unaccessioned artefacts will be dealt with at a later date.

Summer student Liz Inuaruk worked as Artefact Cataloguing Officer on the Collections Textiles project in summer 2021. Here she is holding the paper file for 1973.9.1 - a Buffalo fur coat that she photographed for the paper file and Collective Access database.

Photographs of each artefact were taken and then uploaded to the Collective Access database. A hard copy of each photo was also printed for insertion in the paper file. New permanent locations for each artefact were assigned in the new shelving units and that data inputted into the database.

We'd like to thank Faith Wallace, Program Officer with Canadian Heritage's Museum Assistance Program, for her support of both the 2020 and 2021 storage solution projects. Other support came from the Province of New Brunswick, Heritage Branch through the NB Community Museum Summer Employment Program, the Government of Canada through Young Canada Works and Canada Summer Jobs, and the York Sunbury Historical Society. The project also benefitted from the University of New Brunswick's Experiential Learning and Arts Internship Programs and the Mi'kmaq-Wolastoqey Centre Future Ready program.

In the fall and winter of 2020-2021, UNB Arts 3000 Intern, Brent Meade-Swim photographed artefacts as part of the Collections Management project.

A typical tray of artefacts stored in their permanent storage location on the new 3rd floor shelving units.

In Summer 2020, Sana Sha photographed nearly 500 artefacts as part of the Collections Management project. The digital images were uploaded to the Collective Access database and a hard copy was printed for our paper file.

In Summer and Fall 2020, Collections staff Vincent Wu and April Saulis updated the museum's Collective Access database with information gleaned from their research while working on the Collections Management project. Collective Access is an on line searchable database of the museum's artefacts and archival documents.

TRAVELING THE WABANAKI WAY

Porcupine quill work photographed by Mike Barnaby, Edition Images, for the Travelling the Wabanaki Way Indigenous Heritage project. From the collection of the Fredericton Region Museum 1969.202.91.

In partnership with the Three Nations Education Group Inc. (TNEGI), Workforce Warriors and the York Sunbury Historical Society, this project will expand upon the Fredericton Region Museum’s popular Wabanaki Way exhibit for enhanced Indigenous content and mobility to schools, communities, and events across the province.

The objective of this project is to increase the capacity for, and interest in, heritage management among Wabanaki communities by engaging community members, particularly youth, in travelling the Wabanaki Way.

Work began on the project in March 2021 with the hiring of a Project Director and Project Assistant to curate new experiential content that includes:

- 1) The expansion of existing Wabanaki heritage panels for travelling, which currently include but are not limited to: Artistry, Ceremony, Keluwoskap, Plant Usage, Portage Routes, Residential Schools, Treaties, and Wabanaki People;
- 2) The filming of Wabanaki Knowledge Holders sharing traditional teachings and linking Indigenous knowledge to contemporary issues (such as climate change, poverty, education, etc.);
- 3) The hiring, training, and oversight of travelling Wabanaki Interpreters, with assistance from organizational partners representing the on and off reserve Wabanaki population in the province; and,
- 4) The community outreach, public promotion, and recruitment necessary to engage the Wabanaki population in particular and the non-Indigenous population in general to schedule the travelling exhibit for classes of students, powwows, fairs, festivals, summer camps, special events, and more.

Travelling the Wabanaki Way Project Director, Ramona Nicholas and Sarah Masson, Project Assistant, on site at the Fredericton Region Museum on September 2, 2021. Ramona and Sarah are examining the porcupine quill work.

GRANT NEWS 2021-2020

In this photo local furniture store Hotchkiss Home Furnishings delivers our brand new fridge!

The York Sunbury Historical Society is a non-profit charitable organization that runs the Fredericton Region Museum. The Society relies on municipal, provincial and federal assistance to support everything from new exhibits and the maintenance of our artefact collection to hiring staff and paying for utilities, internet, insurance etc.

We also receive support from private business, foundations and other grant-giving agencies. Below are some of the types of grants we received in 2020-2021 from various funders, some of which are directly related to the additional operational expenses and revenue loss due to COVID.

4 Imprint Grant

In May we received a grant from 4Imprint.com for 1000 free pens with our logo. The pens serve a dual purpose during COVID because they also have a stylus for use on our touchscreens in the Pointe St. Anne and Black Heritage exhibits.

Community Investment Fund

In 2020 and 2021 we received two grants from the NB Community Investment Fund. The first grant was for the purchase of new fridge to replace our old small bar fridge and freezer which had seen better days. The second grant went towards the costs of purchasing new technology for the museum, including two desktop computers and two scanners.

Information Technology Association of Canada

The ITAC Career Ready program supports the wages of a post-secondary student using digital technology as a main part of his / her job. In 2021, Alexzandra Blok won the ITAC Rising Star Award for her work with the Fredericton Region Museum in 2020.

Ivan Crowell Fund

The Ivan Crowell Fund is named in honour of Dr. Ivan Crowell, the first Director of the NB College of Craft and Design. The fund is administered by the Fredericton Community Foundation and every year the Society receives a small grant from the interest earned.

Stingray Radio

In 2020 we received a grant from Stingray Radio for free radio advertising which we used for summer promotion.

CANB Grant

In 2020 and 2021 we received two grants from the Council of Archives of New Brunswick. The first grant was for the "Arrangement and Description" of the Lawson Family Postcards and the Laura McAndrew Second World War letters. The second grant went towards the purchase of supplies such as archival folders, files and cotton gloves.

COVID SUPPORT

Downtown Fredericton Inc.

In 2020 we received a re-opening grant from Downtown Fredericton to help offset the additional costs of purchasing cleaning supplies related to COVID.

NB Community Investment Fund

In 2020 we received a grant from the provincial Community Investment Fund to help offset the loss of revenue due to COVID.

MAP COVID-19 Emergency Fund

In 2020 we received a grant from the federal MAP COVID-19 Emergency Fund to assist with operational costs during COVID.

A grant from 4Imprint paid for 1000 pen / styluses with the museum's logo.

FRED WHITE RETIRES FROM YSHS

Long time Board member Fred White officially "retired" from the York Sunbury Historical Society in September 2021.

Fred has been an indispensable member of the Society since the 1980s when he first became involved with the Fredericton Region Museum. He has held every Board position including President, VP, 2nd VP, Treasurer and even Secretary!

Through a combination of personal and professional interest Fred was at the center of every major development in New Brunswick's heritage sector since the 1960s, including the construction of Kings Landing and the Acadian Village. He's also been a valued contributor to countless other small museums and heritage sites in need of (free) financial advice - and even a volunteer treasurer!

We haven't seen the last of Fred White. He's promised to continue volunteering and we still expect to see his sunny smile (and some pastries) in the office on a regular basis. Thanks for everything Fred! You're one in a million.

ARTIST IN RESIDENCE 2021

Artist in Residence, Rhonda Simmons, working on the balcony of the Fredericton Region Museum during her residency in August 2021.

The Fredericton Region Museum (FRM) has hosted a popular Artist in Residence program since 2014 with the financial support of the City of Fredericton and the York Sunbury Historical Society.

This year, the Artist in Residence program directly connects to the museum's new exhibit "Our Black Heritage: Early Black Settlers of York-Sunbury Counties 1783-Present" which was launched on Emancipation Day, August 1, 2021.

We based this residency on a similar concept sponsored by the City of Edmonton, where city officials developed an artist program focussing on Reconciliation with the city's Indigenous community.

Simmons' three piece assembly art "Mind, Body and Spirit of the Enslaved" was created for her Art Residency and includes this piece entitled "Root Medicine".

Like the Edmonton RISE concept, we want to engage the artist in a discussion about art and reconciliation through an examination of the historical evidence presented within the museum's Black Heritage exhibit.

This year's Artist in Residence is Rhonda Simmons, an assembly artist who was Artist in Residence in 2020 and 2019. Rhonda's roots run deep in the local Black community: in preparing for her residency, Rhonda found her ancestor, James Langford, in the Book of Negroes, on the ship Fishburn destined for the St. John River.

ARTISTS IN RESIDENCE 2020

In 2020, we asked our Artists in Residence to reflect on the COVID Pandemic and its connection to the 1918 Flu Epidemic.

Maria Bourgeois:

Artist in Residence

July 28 to August 8, 2020

Maria offers 20 years experience recreating New Brunswick womens' history in theatre pieces that often include music. In this residency, Maria turned her practise on its head and created music with a theatrical component. Maria wrote historically inspired music pieces based on real life persons featured in current and upcoming exhibits with a focus on the Spanish Flu during the First World War. She also explored connections to Fredericton's Black Heritage through music.

Ruby Allan:

Artist in Residence

July 28 to August 8, 2020

Ruby uses coloured pencils as her primary medium in the studio and oils for Plein Air paintings. In creating her concept for a COVID-19 themed visual art piece, Ruby did not have to look very far: her own grandmother died of the Spanish Flu in 1918. Ruby connected stories - such as the transportation of returning soldiers to Canada that led to the Spanish Flu outbreak in New Brunswick after the First World War - to the role of migration and travel in today's COVID 19.

Rhonda Simmons:

Artist in Residence

August 11 to 22, 2020

Rhonda approached her residency as a "Black Outsider" in the community where she grew up and at a time when a revolution was unfolding through the "Black Lives Matter" movement. Rhonda created three free standing wood panels featuring layered and collaged mixed media focusing on Black Canadian Maritime persons of interest, their locations, statistics and historical facts. The back of the panels incorporated activist / civil rights music that relate to front panels content. Rhonda's panels are featured on the front and back covers of the two volume Officers' Quarters Black History edition (see page 18 for more on Officers' Quarters).

ARCHIVAL TRANSCRIPTION PROJECT 2020

Bored at home? The Fredericton Region Museum needs your help to 'rewrite' history

As many are stuck in their homes, the museum is looking for transcribers

This postcard is just one of hundreds of historical documents that are part of the Fredericton Region Museum collection. (Submitted by Melynda Jarratt)

Media coverage of the Archival Transcription Project went viral on social media during the first weeks of the COVID lockdown in March and April 2020.

The Archival Transcription Project grew out of an overwhelming response during COVID 19 to a request for volunteers to transcribe archival documents.

Now complete, the project resulted in the transcription of nearly 1000 archival documents ranging from early 20th century correspondence and postcards, to 19th century wills and estate documents that had never been transcribed and were therefore unavailable to the public.

The transcribed documents will be printed and made available to the Provincial Archives of New Brunswick, the Council of Archives of NB and through our social media channels.

Considerable energy was spent on recruitment in March and April 2020. This attracted media attention that went viral leading to more than 500 volunteers who were eager to assist with the transcription of archival documents.

The project was made possible with the University of New Brunswick's Student Work Integrated Learning Program (SWILP), UNB's Co-op Program, STU's Future Ready Program and the Information Technology Association of Canada (ITAC) Career Ready Program. Financial assistance for the project came from the NB Heritage Branch, Digital World and Social Media grant, and the York Sunbury Historical Society

Team members included Andrea Pilati, IT Consultant, Ricardo-Bautista-Garcia, Team Lead, Aliya Hamilton, Volunteer Coordinator, Raven Lee-Mills and Applications Developer. Much thanks is also due to Dwight Spencer, whose early involvement in the project gave us a functioning on line system to work with. Thanks is also due to volunteers Anne Touchie and Dylan Grant, who both put an incredible effort into scanning and transcribing the initial batch of postcards, letters and Officers'Quarters magazines.

Finally, a big shout out to our many volunteers who faithfully transcribed nearly 1000 documents from our archival collection. Their work will improve public access to our archival collection and increase understanding of the region's history. More than 500 volunteers signed on to help at the height of COVID and although not all of them stayed with the project, a cadre of helpers stuck through to the end and we couldn't have done it without them.

The Laura Anderson (McAndrew) CWAC letters were acquired in 2016 and donated by her daughter Natalie O'Shea. The letters date between 1944 and 1946.

FIRST WORLD WAR VIRTUAL CLASSROOM

Filmmaker Mathew Gorveatte with Jennifer Hunter during filming in summer 2020. Jennifer worked on the First World Virtual Classroom researching and writing the biographies of soldiers, nursing sisters and civilians. She also wrote the script for a video in which she appears as a Nursing Sister describing the different components of her uniform.

Over the last two summers the Fredericton Region Museum has been developing an online First World War Classroom for use in New Brunswick's schools.

This important new outreach initiative was based on a FWW Toolkit developed in 2015 under the guidance of former Executive Director, Ruth Murgatroyd.

The Virtual Classroom is led by a team of historians and educators including Gary Campbell PhD, Ian Andrews PhD, Cynthia Wallace-Casey PhD, Jayne Jenkins PhD, James Rowinski (PhD Candidate UNB) and Maxine Campbell.

It also received support from the University of New Brunswick Co-op and Internship programs, Young Canada Works, the Information Technology Association of Canada and the NB Heritage Branch via the NB Community Museum Summer Employment Program. The York Sunbury Historical Society also contributed financially to the project.

The First World War Virtual Classroom contains more than 20 biographies of real life New Brunswick soldiers, nursing sisters and civilians (including War Brides) that teachers can use in support of the social studies curriculum across the province.

The online biographies are supported by fully documented "rich content" including archival documents such as letters, newspaper articles, personal journals and diaries, military personnel records, birth, marriage and death certificates, as well as images of artefacts from the collection of the Fredericton Region Museum and other institutions across Canada.

Lesson plans, glossaries and additional learning opportunities are incorporated into the Virtual Classroom as an additional resource for educators who are teaching the First World War.

The website also contains original, professionally filmed videos that speak to specific themes within the larger subject of Canada's participation in the First World War.

The First World War Virtual Classroom will be available for free on line to teachers in 2022.

Alfred Hilaire Belliveau was born on September 28, 1894 in Fredericton to Alphée Thomas and Marie (Babineau) Belliveau. Alphée taught French-speaking education students training to become teachers at the Provincial Normal School in Fredericton and both parents were prominent members of the province's Acadian community, actively promoting their presence in New Brunswick. The family lived at 279 Aberdeen Street. During the First World War he served first with the 165th Acadian Battalion, then with the Canadian Forestry Corps, and later with the Royal Flying Corps flying Sopwith Camels. Photo used with permission of the Musée Acadien P37-B021.

UNB student Aidan Keenan, worked as First World War Virtual Classroom Developer in summer 2021 through the UNB Summer Internship program. He was tasked with gathering content, including images, text, audio and video for the virtual classroom. Aidan continues to work with us as an Arts 3002 Intern in Fall and Winter 2021-2022 to finish up the project.

FIRST WORLD WAR BARRACKS BOXES

During the fall and winter of 2020-2021, the Fredericton Region Museum developed portable, First World War Barracks Boxes which are intended for use in the New Brunswick school system.

The FRM's Barracks Boxes were the brainchild of Dr. Cynthia Wallace-Casey who based the project on the Canadian War Museum's "Supply Line First World War Discovery Box".

The FRM Barracks Boxes use actual artefacts and reproductions (such as vintage gas masks, gas rattle, periscope, helmets, forage caps with badges, trench clubs, Memorial Coins, 3 medal bar sets, military personnel records, and diaries) and images that enable New Brunswick students to experience war in tactile ways.

The Barracks Boxes also encourage the use of the six Historical Thinking Concepts through an examination of young people's core beliefs and assumptions about the First World War in Canada.

Working with the Canadian War Museum, Dr. Lorna Mclean and Dr. Wallace-Casey have initiated a small University of Ottawa inquiry, aimed at identifying the concepts Canadian students (grades 7 – 9) construct about war. They are particularly interested in how the Canadian War Museum's Supply Line discovery box may impact these beliefs. More specifically, their research question is twofold: "What core beliefs and assumptions underpin young peoples' narrative beliefs about the First World War in Canada; and how does Supply Line support historical thinking and historical empathy about the First World War." Their objective is to explore the extent to which students are able to question the highly emotive official narratives of reverence and sacrifice—to construct more complex narratives of war remembrance that empathize with a wide variety of war experiences.

The development of our own Barracks Boxes is due in part to the overwhelming success of the Canadian War Museum's Supply Line Discovery Boxes. Due to high demand, access to the Discovery Box became highly competitive, and this popularity has since not waned at all. Every year, teachers across Canada vie to be included on the museum's circulation schedule.

The three FRM Barracks Boxes were built by Capt. (Ret'd) Doug Hall, the Commander of the Fredericton City Guards and a long time volunteer at the Fredericton Region Museum. During the winter of 2021, UNB Co-op Program student, Spencer Murgatroyd, worked closely with Dr. Wallace-Casey in building the kit components, specifically the reproduction military personnel records and personal diaries.

The boxes represent Lt. Arthur Kelly 73rd Battalion, Pte. Ernest Brewer 26th Battalion and Pte. Felicien Roy 165th Battalion. In 2020, we were able to pilot one of the Barracks Boxes at Fredericton High School and the Multicultural Association of Fredericton and we expect them to be in circulation in the fall of 2021.

THE OFFICERS' QUARTERS BLACK HISTORY AND FIRST WORLD WAR EDITIONS

The Publications' Committee is pleased to announce the publication of the Black History Special Edition (Volumes 37 and 38) which is now available for free to Society members. It is available for $12 each, or two for $20 (plus mailing costs), to non-members.

This impressive double volume contains articles written by local historians, leading Canadian scholars, writers and researchers including former Canadian Poet Laureate, George Elliot Clarke and Lawrence Hill, author of the award winning novel, The Book of Negroes.

First World War Edition

In 2020, the Publications Committee published the First World War Edition (Vols 34 and 35) which featured articles by New Brunswick historians, writers and researchers including Brent Wilson of UNB's Gregg Centre for the Study of War and Society, Gary Campbell, Curtis Mainville, and Roger Nason.

The objective of the Publications Committee is to have two single volumes, or one double volume, of the Officers' Quarters (OQ) published and distributed each calendar year.

A considerable amount of effort goes into the Officers' Quarters, to confirming topics and writers to research and writing, from gathering photos and confirming sources, to editing text and working with the graphic designer on layout and design.

If you have experience in publishing and would like to get involved in the Officers' Quarters, please contact the museum at frederictonregionmuseum@gmail.com or call us at 506-455-6041.

Buy your copy of Officers' Quarters at our museum Gift Shop, our on line Gift Shop or by email at operations@gmail.com or call 506-455-6041

Officers' Quarters Black History Special Edition Vols 37 and 38 have just been published and would make a great Christmas present for the historian in your family! (Christmas Bow Vectors by Vecteezy)

MARTHA J HARVEY AWARD OF DISTINCTION

Diane Taylor Myles accepts the Martha J. Harvey Award on behalf of her late husband, David L. Myles. Standing with Diane is Ian Andrews, former President YSHS.

At our last Christmas Luncheon before COVID 19, Diane Taylor-Myles accepted the Martha J. Harvey Award of Distinction on behalf of her late husband, David L. Myles. Her speech of acceptance follows:

It was a privilege to recently accept the 2019 Martha J. Harvey Award of Distinction on behalf of my late husband David Lister Myles.

The Award, named for the Founder of the York-Sunbury Historical Society, recognized David's contributions in the field of New Brunswick history.

David would be pleased to have his name added to the noteworthy list of previous recipients. He would have protested vehemently, saying that he had never done anything to deserve such an honour.

In sorting through David's collection of material history, he was certainly following the Society's aim of gathering and preserving objects and traditions of historical interest in the region of central New Brunswick and especially York and Sunbury Counties. David's collection of material history covers not only York and Sunbury Counties but all the counties of New Brunswick.

In fact, it may have been York-Sunbury Historical Society that planted the seed for his absolute passion for all things historical. More than once he reminisced that as a youngster he often did not go straight home after school, but instead went down to the "museum" where a formidable old gentleman seemed to be in charge.

"David would be pleased to have his name added to the noteworthy list of previous recipients."

After a bit of persuasion, the old gentleman had the patience and foresight to answer all David's questions and to teach him the names and applications of all sorts of memorabilia from World War I. His interest in World War II was just as intense. David's hero, his older brother Bob, had enlisted in the Navy toward the end of the war when he came of age. The old gentleman who was mentoring David was probably G. Alvah Good, one of the early Society volunteers.

David's curiosity for material history led him to the study of both fine and country furniture. He became interested in the tools of traditional trades and crafts: lumbering, agriculture, and guiding. Not only did he learn about the tools, artifacts, and related folk art, he began to make notes and collect stories and photographs.

Some fifty boxes of files, notes and photographs are a testament to his addiction. We often reassured one another that his "was a socially acceptable addiction". His library holds several hundred books related to World Wars I and II.

Over the years David never hesitated to suggest that articles of historical interest belonging to his friends or acquaintances be donated to the York Sunbury Historical Society. His practical intuition led him to direct museum display furnishings to the Society.

The Provincial Archives of New Brunswick has begun a David Lister Myles collection and more than a dozen years of the Minutes of the Board of the Directors of Kings Landing have recently been deposited there.

On behalf of the Myles family, please accept a heartfelt thank you for presenting posthumously to David Myles the York Sunbury Historical Society's 2019 Martha J. Harvey Award of Distinction.

SPEAKER SERIES 2020-2021

The York Sunbury Historical Society Speaker Series had two highly successful presentations in January and February 2020 prior to the declaration of Emergency in March. The last public event on February 20, featured Joe Gee of the Tomlinson Lake Hike to Freedom speaking of the Underground Railroad in New Brunswick. This event was standing room only in the ballroom of the Old Government House with an audience of 150+ and the Lt. Governor in attendance, a first for the series.

With the complete shut down of public events, we cancelled the rest of the spring series and opened up again in October 2020, under the direction of YSHS Programs Chair, Charles Ferris, moving to an online virtual format in ZOOM. We hired IT consultant, Stephen Thomas, to manage the technical side of the program, freeing up the host and participants to focus on the presentation.

These events have been extremely well attended proving that we have been able to keep our core audience and expand beyond the borders of New Brunswick to the United States, Britain and Europe. Moving to a digital format has also allowed us to record the events and post them to YouTube and social media, giving them an additional life span beyond the one time public presentation at OGH.

GEOTOURS SUMMER 2021

The fascinating geological history of Fredericton's built heritage and gravestones were the focus of a free weekly guided GEOTOUR every Friday morning throughout the month of July and August 2021.

Led by Dr. Anne Timmermans, Senior Instructor and Curator of UNB's Quartermain Earth Science Center, the 1.5 hour GEOTOURS began at the Fredericton Region Museum at 10:30 am Fridays and followed a trail through the downtown that ended at the Old Burying Ground.

Judged by the success of this year's GEOTOURS, we hope Dr. Timmermans will be back again in 2022!

"MEADOWLANDS"

Virginia Bjerklund's new book "Meadowlands" is available in the Museum's giftshop!

Virginia Bliss Bjerklund, a long time member of the YSHS has published a new book which tells the story of the Scovils, a prominent Gagetown, New Brunswick family.

Meadowlands – A Chronicle of the Scovil Family, is described as "(a)n interesting, readable, often humorous, portrayal of life in the early years of the 20th century".

It tells the story of the Scovil family after the death of the mother of the five Scovil children. Major characters in the book are Aunt Bessie (Elizabeth Scovil), a professional nurse who knew Florence Nightingale, and Mary Scovil, the youngest daughter in the family and the author's mother. The book follows the lives of the family, detailing their adventures and travels. The reader is assisted by a map of the area, a family tree and photos of the people in the book. (From a review by Jane Tims on janetims.com)

Meadowlands was short-listed in the New Brunswick Book Awards for the Writers' Federation of New Brunswick Non-fiction Award!

POINTE-SAINTE-ANNE EXHIBIT

The Pointe Sainte-Anne exhibit tells the story of the destruction of Pointe Sainte-Anne in February 1759 and was curated by Dr. Chantal Richard and Stephanie Pettigrew, Research Director. It was built by exhibit developer Doug Hall with assistance from John Hall, Ian MacEacheron and Nick Orchard. Digital animation was created by Alan Edwards and Mitra Bakhtiar of Synthetic Imageworks. The interior of the exhibit is intended to represent the Martin House, the oldest Acadian building in New Brunswick which was located at French Village near Mactaquac and is currently in the Village Historique Acadien. Photo credit Kierns Marketing.

On August 15, 2019, National Acadian Day, we launched our new exhibition on the history of Pointe Sainte-Anne, an Acadian settlement that was situated along the St. John River, in what has since become Fredericton. The settlement existed between 1692 and 1759, when it was destroyed during the St. John River Campaign. The exhibit is a recreation of the Martin House, which is believed to be the oldest Acadian building in NB. The house was originally located in French Village outside of Fredericton and is now in the Village Historique Acadien. This interactive exhibit is a first for the museum, using touch screens, voice-over narration, and virtual reality to allow visitors to experience the history of Pointe Sainte-Anne in a new way.

Many thanks to Dr. Chantal Richard, Stephanie Pettigrew, Doug Hall, Allan Edwards & Mitra Bahktair of Synthetic Imageworks for their hard work and dedication in making this exhibit a reality.

The Pointe Sainte-Anne exhibit was made possible with the financial support of the York Sunbury Historical Society, the Social Science and Humanities Research Council of Canada, NB Heritage Branch, and Canadian Heritage. The project also received the support of key partners such as Synthetic Imageworks, Le Village Historique Acadien, La Société historique de la rivière Saint-Jean, the University of New Brunswick, as well as consultants Andrea Bear-Nicholas, Fidèle Thériault, and Dr.Cynthia Wallace-Casey.

FRANTICALLY ATLANTIC FUNDRAISER

Michelle Daigle and Don Rigley of Frantically Atlantic held a virtual fundraiser for the Fredericton Region Museum and the Fredericton Public Library in August 2020. The event raised $1200 for the Museum! Thank You!

The Friends of the Fredericton Public Library, Fredericton Region Museum and the Bibliothèque publique de Fredericton Public Library teamed up with Fredericton's own Frantically Atlantic, Don Rigley and Michelle Daigle, for a virtual fundraising event!

100% of the proceeds went towards support for the Library collections through the Friends of the Fredericton Public Library and the Museum's operating costs and programming.

The bilingual concert was recorded and edited by video wizard Gary Weekes of Weekes Photography and was streamed on Facebook Sunday, August 23, 2020. $1200 was raised for the Museum through this fundraiser.

Reading this newsletter will be a delight for all! It provides a great look-back at the activities of the York-Sunbury Historical Society and the Fredericton Region Museum over the past three years.

We have made great progress – three excellent new exhibits, much needed work done with the collection, several out-reach programmes and the employment of many students during the COVID-19 pandemic!

It is our COVID-19 response that I am particularly proud of. When the lockdown happened, Melynda Jarratt (our Executive Director) quickly “pivoted” and went into virtual mode. The Archival Transcription project and the First World War Virtual Classroom provided a needed activity for many and employment for others. This carried on to the Virtual Speakers’ Programme that has engaged greater audiences than ever before. This has put us in the forefront of positive COVID-19 responses.

We have also received recognition for our efforts. The Association Heritage New Brunswick presented the Black Heritage exhibit with the prestigious Award of Distinction. Enjoy reading and re-reading this newsletter...and come visit the museum!

GUY TREMBLAY RETIRES

In recognition of his long service, Guy was presented the Award of Distinction at the Association Heritage NB AGM in October, 2021.

Congratulations to Guy Tremblay, former Manager of Museum Services with the NB Heritage Branch, on his retirement in January 2021.

Guy was a great friend and supporter to the many museums and heritage sites in New Brunswick to which he provided valuable advice, service and encouragement. His guiding hand can be seen in the untold number of exhibits, programs and the training opportunities which were developed during his tenure at the Heritage Branch.

The FRM’s Black Heritage exhibit was presented the Award of Distinction at the Association Heritage NB AGM in October, 2021. (See pages 2 and 3 for more info on Black Heritage exhibit.)
